

HARDING RECORD PUTS MINNESOTA IN DOUBTFUL LIST

Lawrence Says Nonpartisan League Dislikes Conservative Leader and May Throw Strength to Forty-Eighters.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.
(Special Correspondent of the News Scimitar.)

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 17.—First impressions are not always conclusive, but the reaction of this part of Minnesota to the nomination of Senator Harding is on the whole rather favorable. And yet, strangely enough, apart from the whole rather favorable reaction, the nonpartisan league make it possible even at this early date to write Minnesota down as a doubtful state.

For the truth is the nonpartisan league has practically taken possession of the Republican party in Minnesota, and the league's candidate for governor in next week's primaries is regarded even by the opponents of the league as certain of nomination. Now the nonpartisan league was very friendly to Hiram Johnson, and the state was for Johnson. Harding is not acceptable to the nonpartisan league because of his conservatism and with the elimination of Johnson, the league vote probably will go toward Senator La Follette or toward some other nominee of the party soon to be started at Chicago by the famous Committee of Forty-Eight.

Democratic Chances.
Indeed, if the nonpartisan league captures the Republican primary, the gubernatorial race, Democrats and Republicans alike who are in sympathy with the philosophy of the nonpartisan league will be urged to fuse their strength in support of the Democratic candidate.

With a Republican state ticket favored by the nonpartisan league and a Democratic state ticket supported by all parties, the vote on president may be divided into three parts, which means that the normally large Republican vote could easily be split so that no section of it would be as big as the normal Democratic vote and the Democrats might win the electoral vote of Minnesota.

Much will depend upon the outcome of next week's primaries, but it will not be forgotten that this is Roosevelt territory and that in 1916 Woodrow Wilson fell just 27 votes short of overturning the overwhelming Roosevelt majority and taking the whole state from Hughes.

The conservatives in the state, on the other hand, are rather glad that Johnson was beaten, and they are confident Senator Harding need not worry about the outcome in November. Many Irish Democrats are deeply grieved over Johnson's defeat. They are among the most bitter critics of the Wilson administration and were all prepared to enter the Republican party. Just where they will now go is hard to say, but it is doubtful if they will vote the Democratic ticket unless something concrete is pledged toward the cause of Irish freedom. And if they do not vote the Democratic ticket, they will vote the Republican ticket.

Wet and Dry Issue.
The wet and dry issue will also enter into St. Paul's decision. This town is a town of decided moist predilections. In all probability a Democratic vote on congress for one of the Democratic aspirants has announced himself on a platform, which he himself calls "being wet." Any such statement on the part of the same thing by the head of the Democratic ticket would win votes elsewhere, though it would lose votes elsewhere in the state.

Johnson would have been an ideal Republican candidate for Minnesota. He was damp enough and radical enough and anti-Wilson enough and anti-League of Nations enough to catch most everybody. This state started out very favorably inclined toward the League of Nations. However, the League of Nations was, of course, advocated by Republican newspapers, few of whom made any terrible mistake in the state of a league. But Hiram Johnson came up here and started things in the opposite direction.

Business men and conservative Democrats and Republicans are great opportunities in the election of Harding. Radicals, and they are numerous here, are only confirmation of the methods of the "capitalistic" regime which they palaver about so often hereabouts. They call the Republican "Old Guard," who chose Harding, the real minority trying to rule the majority.

Conservative Democrats and Republicans fully expect a Harding victory throughout the country. The reaction against the Wilson administration is even greater than it was a year ago. The request for a mandate over Armenia, judged by the public sentiment here at least, was an ill-considered move. It was looked upon as proof of the argument that the League of Nations meant the sending of American troops abroad.

The Democratic presidential nominee will have to give convincing evidence of an intention to steer clear of internationalism to hold the Democratic vote—and, as said before, holding the Democratic vote of 1916 means a Democratic victory here, if, as seems likely, the Republican party is split by the machinations of the nonpartisan league.

Says Entire State Has Pledged Help For Jewish Relief

If Memphis will do its part as well as the rest of the state the appeal for Jewish relief during the week of June 21-28 will be a great success.

This is the message which R. H. Thornbury, state director, brought to Memphis Thursday, after a hurried trip over the state. He was assured that Memphis always had done its part and that the drive next week for Jewish relief would show Memphis living up to its reputation.

"I received splendid assurances of success everywhere I went," Mr. Thornbury said. "All districts are organized up to scratch. Everybody is enthusiastic. In fact, we are receiving the best support we have ever had."

Knoxville practically has raised its quota already, while the western districts, of which Jackson is the center, is right up to top notch. I addressed a banquet of non-Jews there last night and every man present, from the mayor down, assured me that he would back the work to the limit. Jackson will raise its quota in a day or two.

At a conference following the banquet at Jackson Mr. Thornbury talked with the chairman of 26 counties and without exception every man promised him that his county's quota would be raised in a hurry.

Mr. Thornbury was particularly pleased to learn that eight counties, in which there is not a single Jew, will make their quotas easily. The soliciting teams are made up entirely of non-Jews, but they have heard the cry of humanity, a cry that knows no creed, and they are determined to heed it.

VOTE ON ROAD BONDS.
TOCOPOILA, Miss., June 17. (Spt.)—In compliance with petitions filed by the voters of Districts Nos. 2 and 3 of Lafayette county, the board of supervisors has decided an election to be held in these districts on July 6 to determine whether or not the bonds of said districts shall be levied for the purpose of construction permanent highways and making improvements on the same.

It is expected that the proposition will carry by a safe majority.

CANNED GOODS SUPPLY AMPLE

Delaney Finds Two Score Chicago Warehouses Bulging With Foodstuffs.

BY JOHN F. DELANEY.
(Written for the International News Service.)

Chicago housewives will be unable to put up fruit and vegetables which require sugar this year, according to the predictions of sugar brokers, but there will be no shortage of canned goods, fruits or other preserved articles that require sugar in their manufacture if the supplies of these commodities in the Chicago storage warehouses are to be taken into consideration.

In my trail through the billion-dollar food reserves of Chicago storage places I saw an enormous amount of canned goods held there. Every place I went into I saw a surplus of food. In the majority as compared with other things which were being held for a future sale.

I was first introduced to the large amounts of canned goods when I entered the Greenwood & Walker warehouse to look over the Bunte Bros' supply of sugar. Here I passed through walls of canned goods and goods lined for blocks on every floor.

In taking photographs of the sugar supply, coffee and other commodities it was impossible to keep the canned goods out of the picture. They were everywhere.

At the Soo Terminal warehouse, where the U. S. Wall Commission company has its headquarters, there were so much canned goods they were crowding their way out of the warehouse proper and were taking available space in the gangways of the building, on the elevator landings and wherever there was enough space to permit of stacking a row of boxes or a ceiling-high stack.

The Chicago Cold Storage company also furnished a view of a large amount of canned goods of all descriptions.

In the West Side warehouse subsidiary building at Kinney and Canal streets, I found five floors of foodstuffs packed in as tightly as it could be packed and not violate the building regulations.

When I entered the cold storage warehouses the canned goods seemed to run more to fish and meats and milk and fruits and vegetables. This, of course, was aside from the large amounts of fresh vegetables which were found in cold storage, in many cases frozen hard and in some cases, strange to say, I found boxes of apples and bags of raisins rotting-ripe in cold storage.

I asked about this situation and an attendant of the warehouse declared it was not out of the ordinary, that very frequently large supplies had to be thrown away to make room for new goods. He said this was due to the condition of the apples and raisins and other fruits at the time of packing.

I am not an expert on food inspection, and do not pretend to be able to judge scientifically of the condition of meats, but if thousands of pounds of meat are rotting and bad then they are not rotting and bad then they are apparently discarded in some of the cold storage warehouses of Chicago, are not rotting and bad then they are apparently discarded in some of the cold storage warehouses of Chicago.

At the B & G docks, where flour was found molding and breaking the backs, there was also an abundance of canned goods. At the Graham & Morton docks likewise there were hundreds and hundreds of boxes of preserved fruits and vegetables. At the Canada Atlantic docks on East North Water street one could hardly find a passageway to walk through.

Twelve floors, almost solidly packed with canned goods, as neat an uncounted sight in a warehouse.

Editor's Note.—This is the last of a series of articles on the food situation in Chicago.
